Steamer Tweedale Arrives From San Francisco—Germanicus is Due Down at Any Time—Alliance Aground, But Arrives Last Night.

The bar continues to be smooth these days. All day yesterday a good bar was reported and the weather changed from cloudy to a light rain changing again to cloudy. At 8 a. m. the wind was easterly at 10 miles an hour and the weather cloudy. No change was reported at noon except that a light rain was falling. At 4 o'clock the wind was from the southwest, 12 miles an hour, and the rain had ceased, though it was cloudy.

Thirty-three Years in Astoria

Established in 1875.

The United States Quarantine steamer Omaha. The Tweedale suffered the loss of one blade of her propeller and but slight damage was done to the Omaha. The Tweedale is consigned to Taylor, Young & Co., of Portland, and will load flour for the Orient.

Captain Veysey, surveyor to Lloyds Register and Fritz De Rock, submarine diver, of Portland, were busy yesterday examining the Claverdon with a view to ascertaining if any damage had been done when the ship went on the sands over a week ago. Captain Veysey surveyed the interior and upper part of the vessel and Mr. De Rock made a thorough examination of the hull below the water line. Everything was found in good condition. Reloading will be commenced at once which will take about a week when the vessel will be ready for sea again.

The steam schooner Tallac arrived down yesterday morning and went to sea at 9 a. m. She has a grain cargo and is bound for San Francisco.

The Alliance arrived down last night at 8 o'clock. She left Portland on Monday night and was due to leave here for Coos Bay yesterday. It was reported yesterday on the arrival of the Lurline that she was aground in the Willamette which was the cause of the delay in reaching here. She will leave out early this morning.

The Standard Oil Company's oil steamer Maevrick came down the river yesterday and will leave out at daylight this morning.

The German bark Nal, Captain Schulte, arrived yesterday, 58 days from Iquique. The captain reports head winds and calms as being experienced on the voyage. Slow headway was made at times, she making but eight miles in three days at one time. The Nal will proceed up the river to load grain for Europe.

The steamer Germanicus, lumber laden, bound for California, is due down from Portland at any time.

The Norwegian steamer Haldis sailed from San Francisco yesterday for the Columbia river.

yesterday, where they will load oil.

Quite a change has occurred in the list of engineers on the steamer Costa Rica. Chief Engineer E. P. Houghton, who has been on the coasters for the past 15 years, has resigned his position, his three assistants joining him in quitting the service. E. Steagall, formerly with the City of Panama, has been appointed chief engineer, and the places of the other men have been filled. No reason has been given for the resignations but it is thought that the men expected to be placed on the Rose City but were not assigned to that vessel, which will be ready to sail from San Francisco in a few days. First Officer C. H. Johnson will also resign when the Costa Rica returns to San Francisco.
